Postdoctoral Research

Project title: "Balancing Cost and Sustainability: Analysing Consumer Sensitivity to Food Prices and Retail Sales Promotion Strategies to Reduce Food Waste."

Institution: School of Social Sciences, Hellenic Open University.

Period: November 2024–present.

Principal investigator and supervisor: Professor Prokopis Theodoridis.

Research focus: The project investigates consumer behaviour in the cost–sustainability trade-off for food products. Using quantitative and behavioural models, it studies consumer sensitivity to food prices and retailers' sales promotion strategies with the aim of reducing food waste. It combines marketing, behavioural economics, and sustainable consumption in the research area of marketing, consumer behaviour, and sustainability.

Education

2024: University of Patras, Greece.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD).

Dissertation: "Food Waste and the Greek Consumer: An Empirical Study of Consumer Behaviour."

The dissertation reviews the causes and trends of food waste in Greece and abroad. Its empirical model examines how general knowledge of environmental issues and specific knowledge of food waste shape consumer attitudes and behaviour. It identifies distinct food-waste-related consumer profiles and analyses the effects of gender, age, income, household size, education, and residential setting. The findings can inform targeted interventions by public and private organisations and civil society to prevent food waste and encourage environmentally responsible consumption.

2019: Hellenic Open University, Greece.

MSc in Banking.

Dissertation: "Green Investments and Green Sovereign Bonds: An Examination of Green Bond Returns."

The dissertation examines the development of green bonds, international market trends, their structural features, viability, and usefulness. It reviews the evidence, discusses banks' internal environment and the relationship between sustainable development and green financial products, and empirically compares green bonds with conventional bonds as an investment option.

2014: University of Patras, Greece.

MBA in Food Business Management.

Dissertation: "Causes and Drivers of Food Waste."

This dissertation analyses the causes and environmental, social, and economic consequences of food waste, and uses a quantitative survey to examine Greek consumers' behaviour in relation to food waste.

2012: University of Ioannina, Greece.

BSc in Economics.

Institutional Roles and Experience in Agri-Food Policy

- August 2026–present: Working Group Member, Regulatory Authority for Waste, Energy and Water (RAAEY), studying the authority's regulatory and supervisory role in irrigation and sewerage services, international experience, the situation in Greece, and related regulatory challenges. Appointed by RAAEY Decision 466/2026 (official online decision code: ΡΡΥΑΙΔΞ-ΙΣΡ).

As a working group member, I examine the regulation and supervision of irrigation and sewerage service provision, comparative international practice, existing Greek arrangements, and the resulting regulatory challenges. The work is relevant to agricultural policy through irrigation-water management and the services that support agricultural production.

- 2025–August 2026: Working Group Member for the CAP 2028–2034, Region of Western Greece. Appointed by decision of the Deputy Regional Governor for Agricultural Development (official online decision code: ΕΠΧΖ7Λ6-ΛΞΦ).

I was appointed to help formulate the Region of Western Greece's positions on the next Common Agricultural Policy (CAP 2028–2034). My work included collecting and analysing agricultural economic data, synthesising findings from multidisciplinary focus groups, and preparing evidence-based proposals on:

– restructuring production systems;

– improving agri-food competitiveness;

– adapting to climate change and meeting environmental requirements;

– integrating sustainability measures and producer and consumer behaviour into policy.

I also contributed to a proposal for a permanent regional consultation mechanism involving producer organisations and primary-sector stakeholders to monitor implementation of the CAP 2028–2034.

- 2024–August 2026: Working Group Member for the Olive Fruit Fly Control Programme, Region of Western Greece. Appointed by the Deputy Regional Governor for Agricultural Development (official online decision code: ΨΡΠ37Λ6-2ΤΣ).

I contributed to the programme's technical dossier, programme agreement, and memorandum of cooperation with ELGO-DIMITRA. The work applied agricultural economic analysis to production-risk management, assessed the agri-food implications of the programme, and linked research with agricultural practice.

- 2024–August 2026: Coordinator of the Region of Western Greece's participation in agri-food trade fairs and export-promotion activities. Appointed by the Deputy Regional Governor for Agricultural Development (protocol no. 12065/18-01-2024).

I coordinated participation in fairs and promotional initiatives, contributed to product-promotion policies and evidence-based regional strategies, and connected producers, institutions, and markets. My work used agricultural economic analysis to improve the visibility and competitiveness of regional products, support entrepreneurship, and advance a sustainable, outward-looking agri-food sector.

- 2022–August 2026: Scientific Associate to the Deputy Regional Governor for Agricultural Development, Region of Western Greece.

I developed and documented agricultural economic policies, with a focus on agri-food systems, food markets, and producer and consumer behaviour. My work involved analysing sectoral data, drafting strategic and operational policy documents, evaluating regional development interventions, and supporting collaboration with research bodies including ELGO-DIMITRA and universities. I participated in working groups on olive fruit fly control and CAP strategy, contributing to agri-food governance and the sustainable transition of primary production.
